

Ontario-Based Logistics Solution Partner Leverages Netsmartz To Develop High-Performance UX For Their Web Apps

Learn how team Netsmartz helped the client build powerful front-end solutions for their web applications to improve user experience and overall functionality.

ABOUT THE CLIENT

The client is an integrated logistics solution partner based in Ontario, Canada. They provide one-stop solutions for parcel delivery, dispatching, tracking, shipping, billing, routing, and logistics operations automation.

THE NEED

Our client had a transport management tool for warehouse management, shipping, tracking, billing automation, etc. They needed us to build aesthetically pleasing and unique web apps for them, but mainly the front end since they had resources for the back end.

OUR SOLUTION

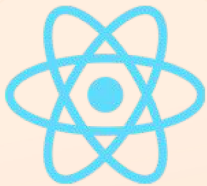

We met with the client to understand their requirements and set clear expectations for the project. This helped us realize how we can go about the project and which specific professional will work on the front-end development of the application.

TECH STACK

Firebase

ReactJS

Google
BigQuery

RESOURCE ALLOCATION

Based on the client's needs, we allocated our senior resource to work on the project. Our assigned developer had extensive experience in developing software solutions for the transportation and logistics industry that helped them achieve the desired results easily.

UX DESIGNING

The client wanted our help designing the front end for their web apps. So, after collaborating with the client, our expert decided to leverage ReactJS to build a reliable, seamless, and high-performance UX design for web apps.
